

Data Protection Policy

This document sets out Relationships Scotland's policy on the protection of information relating to staff members, workers, contractors, volunteers and interns (referred to as staff members). Protecting the confidentiality and integrity of personal data is a critical responsibility that Relationships Scotland takes seriously at all times. Relationships Scotland will ensure that data is always processed in accordance with the provisions of relevant data protection legislation, including the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

KEY DEFINITIONS

Data processing

Data processing is any activity that involves the use of personal data. It includes obtaining, recording or holding the data, or carrying out any operation or set of operations on the data including organising, amending, retrieving, using, disclosing, erasing or destroying it. Processing also includes transmitting or transferring personal data to third parties.

Personal data

Personal data is any information identifying a data subject (a living person to whom the data relates). It includes information relating to a data subject that can be identified (directly or indirectly) from that data alone or in combination with other identifiers Relationships Scotland possesses or can reasonably access. Personal data can be factual (for example, a name, email address, location or date of birth) or an opinion about that person's actions or behaviour.

Sensitive personal data

Sensitive personal data is a special category of information which relates to a data subject's racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or similar beliefs, trade union membership, physical or mental health conditions, sexual life, sexual orientation, biometric or genetic data. It also includes personal data relating to criminal offences and convictions.

Privacy Notice

This policy, together with the information contained in the table of staff member data appended to the policy, constitutes a privacy notice setting out the information Relationships Scotland holds about staff members, the purpose for which this data is held and the lawful basis on which it is held. Relationships Scotland may process personal information without staff members' knowledge or consent, in compliance with this policy, where this is required or permitted by law.

If the purpose for processing any piece of data about staff members should change, Relationships Scotland will update the table of staff member data with the new purpose and the lawful basis for processing the data and will notify staff members.

Fair Processing of Data

Fair processing principles

In processing staff members' data the following principles will be adhered to. Personal data will be:

- Used lawfully, fairly and in a transparent way;
- Collected only for valid purposes that are clearly explained and not used in any way that is incompatible with those purposes;
- Relevant to specific purposes and limited only to those purposes;
- Accurate and kept up to date;
- Kept only as long as necessary for the specified purposes; and
- Kept securely.

Lawful processing of personal data

Personal information will only be processed when there is a lawful basis for doing so. Most commonly, Relationships Scotland will use personal information in the following circumstances:

- when it is needed to perform staff members' contracts of employment;
- when it is needed to comply with a legal obligation; or
- when it is necessary for Relationships Scotland's legitimate interests (or those of a third party) and staff members' interests and fundamental rights do not override those interests.

Relationships Scotland may also use personal information in the following situations, which are likely to be rare:

- when it is necessary to protect staff members' interests (or someone else's interests); or
- when it is necessary in the public interest [or for official purposes].

Lawful processing of sensitive personal data

Relationships Scotland may process special categories of personal information in the following circumstances:

- In limited circumstances, with explicit written consent;
- in order to meet legal obligations;
- when it is needed in the public interest, such as for equal opportunities monitoring [or in relation to Relationships Scotland's occupational pension scheme]; or
- when it is needed to assess working capacity on health grounds, subject to appropriate confidentiality safeguards.

Less commonly, Relationships Scotland may process this type of information where it is needed in relation to legal claims or where it is needed to protect a staff member's interests (or someone else's interests) and the staff member is not capable of giving consent, or where a staff member has already made the information public. Relationships Scotland may use particularly sensitive personal information in the following ways:

- information relating to leaves of absence, which may include sickness absence or family related leaves, may be used to comply with employment and other laws;
- information about staff members' physical or mental health, or disability status, may be used to ensure health and safety in the workplace and to assess fitness to work, to provide appropriate workplace adjustments, to monitor and manage sickness absence and to administer benefits;
- information about race or national or ethnic origin, religious, philosophical or moral beliefs, or sexual life or sexual orientation, may be used to ensure meaningful equal opportunity monitoring and reporting; and
- information about trade union membership may be used to pay trade union premiums, register the status of a protected staff member and to comply with employment law obligations.

Lawful processing of information about criminal convictions

Relationships Scotland does not envisage that it will hold information about criminal convictions. If it becomes necessary to do so, Relationships Scotland will only use this information where it has a legal basis for processing the information. This will usually be where such processing is necessary to carry out Relationships Scotland's obligations. Less commonly, Relationships Scotland may use information relating to criminal convictions where it is necessary in relation to legal claims, where it is necessary to protect a staff member's interests (or someone else's interests) and the staff member is not capable of giving consent, or where the staff member has already made the information public.

Relationships Scotland will only collect information about criminal convictions if it is appropriate given the nature of the role and where it is legally able to do so.

Consent to data processing

Relationships Scotland does not require consent from staff members to process most types of staff member data. In addition, Relationships Scotland will not usually need consent to use special categories of personal information in order to carry out legal obligations or exercise specific rights in the field of employment law. If a staff member fails to provide certain information when requested, Relationships Scotland may not be able to perform the contract entered into with the staff member (such as paying the staff member or providing a benefit). Relationships Scotland may also be prevented from complying with legal obligations (such as to ensure the health and safety of staff members).

In limited circumstances, for example, if a medical report is sought for the purposes of managing sickness absence, staff members may be asked for written consent to process sensitive data. In those circumstances, staff members will be provided with full details of the information that sought and the reason it is needed, so that staff members can carefully consider whether to consent. It is not a condition of staff members' contracts that staff members agree to any request for consent.

Where staff members have provided consent to the collection, processing and transfer of personal information for a specific purpose, they have the right to withdraw consent for that specific processing at any time. Once Relationships Scotland has received notification of withdrawal of consent it will no longer process information for the purpose or purposes originally agreed to, unless it has another legitimate basis for doing so in law.

Automated Decision Making

Automated decision-making takes place when an electronic system uses personal information to make a decision without human intervention.

Relationships Scotland does not envisage that any decisions will be taken about staff members using automated means, however staff members will be notified if this position changes.

Collection and Retention of Data

Collection of data

Relationships Scotland will collect personal information about staff members through the application and recruitment process, either directly from candidates or sometimes from an employment agency or background check provider. Relationships Scotland may sometimes collect additional information from third parties including former employers, credit reference agencies or other background check agencies.

The table of staff member data appended to this policy relates to information which is collected at the outset of employment. From time to time, Relationships Scotland may collect additional personal information in the course of job-related activities throughout the period of employment. If Relationships Scotland requires to obtain additional personal information, this policy will be updated or staff members will receive a separate privacy notice setting out the purpose and lawful basis for processing the data.

Retention of data

Relationships Scotland will only retain staff members' personal information for as long as necessary to fulfil the purposes it was collected it for, including for the purposes of satisfying any legal, accounting, or reporting requirements. Details of retention periods for different aspects of personal information are set out in the table of staff member data appended to this policy.

When determining the appropriate retention period for personal data, Relationships Scotland will consider the amount, nature, and sensitivity of the personal data, the potential risk of harm from unauthorised use or disclosure of personal data, the purposes for which the personal data is processed, whether Relationships Scotland can achieve those purposes through other means, and the applicable legal requirements.

In some circumstances Relationships Scotland may anonymise personal information so that it can no longer be associated with individual staff members, in which case Relationships Scotland may use such information without further notice to staff members. After the data retention period has expired, Relationships Scotland will securely destroy staff members' personal information.

Data Security and Sharing

Data security

Relationships Scotland has put in place appropriate security measures to prevent personal information from being accidentally lost, used or accessed in an unauthorised way, altered or disclosed. Details of these measures are available upon request. Relationships Scotland expects staff members handling personal data to take steps to safeguard personal data of staff members (or any other individual) in line with this policy.

Data sharing

Relationships Scotland requires third parties to respect the security of staff member data and to treat it in accordance with the law. Relationships Scotland may share personal information with third parties, for example in the context of the possible sale or restructuring of the business. Relationships Scotland may also need to share personal information with a regulator or to otherwise comply with the law.

Relationships Scotland may also share staff member data with third-party service providers where it is necessary to administer the working relationship with staff members or where Relationships Scotland has a legitimate interest in doing so. The following activities are carried out by third-party service providers:

- Pension Administration: Scottish Widows plc
- Pension Advice: Chiene+ Tait Financial Planning Ltd.

Staff Member Rights and Obligations

Accuracy of data

Relationships Scotland will conduct regular reviews of the information held by it to ensure the relevancy of the information it holds. Staff members are under a duty to inform Relationships Scotland of any changes to their current circumstances. Where an Staff member has concerns regarding the accuracy of personal data held by Relationships Scotland, the Staff member should contact the Head of Corporate Services to request an amendment to the data.

Staff member rights

Under certain circumstances, staff members have the right to:

- Request access to personal information (commonly known as a “data subject access request”)
- Request erasure of personal information.
- Object to processing of personal information where Relationships Scotland is relying on a legitimate interest (or those of a third party) to lawfully process it.
- Request the restriction of processing of personal information.
- Request the transfer of personal information to another party.

If a staff member wishes to make a request on any of the above grounds, they should contact the Head of Corporate Services, in writing. Please note that, depending on the nature of the request, Relationships Scotland may have good grounds for refusing to comply. If that is the case, the staff member will be given an explanation by Relationships Scotland.

Data subject access requests

Staff members will not normally have to pay a fee to access personal information (or to exercise any of the other rights). However, Relationships Scotland may charge a reasonable fee if the request for access is clearly unfounded or excessive. Alternatively, Relationships Scotland may refuse to comply with the request in such circumstances.

Relationships Scotland may need to request specific information from the staff member to help confirm their identity and ensure the right to access the information (or to exercise any of the other rights). This is another appropriate security measure to ensure that personal information is not disclosed to any person who has no right to receive it.

Compliance with this Policy

Relationships Scotland's responsibility for compliance

Relationships Scotland has appointed a data protection manager, Lucy Craig, (DPM) who is tasked with overseeing compliance with this policy. If staff members have any questions about this policy or how Relationships Scotland handles personal information, they should contact the DPM. Staff members have the right to make a complaint at any time to the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO), the UK supervisory authority for data protection issues.

Data security breaches

Relationships Scotland has put in place procedures to deal with any data security breach and will notify staff members and any applicable regulator of a suspected breach where legally required to do so. Details of these measures are available upon request

In certain circumstances, Relationships Scotland will be required to notify regulators of a data security breach within 72 hours of the breach. Therefore, if a staff member becomes aware of a data security breach it is imperative that they report it to DPM immediately.

Privacy by design

Relationships Scotland will have regard to the principles of this policy and relevant legislation when designing or implementing new systems or processes (known as "privacy by design").

Staff members' responsibility for compliance

All staff members, particularly those tasked with regularly handling personal data of colleagues or third parties, have responsibility for ensuring that processing meets the standards set out in this policy. Staff members should observe, as a minimum, the following rules:

- Staff members must observe to the letter any instruction or guidelines issued by Relationships Scotland in relation to data protection.
- Staff members should not disclose personal data about Relationships Scotland, colleague or third parties unless that disclosure is fair and lawful, in line with this policy;
- Staff members must take confidentiality and security seriously, whether the staff member considers the information to be sensitive or not.
- Any personal data collected or recorded manually which is to be inputted to an electronic system should be inputted accurately and without delay.
- Staff members must not make any oral or written reference to personal data held by Relationships Scotland about any individual except to staff members of Relationships Scotland who need the information for their work or an authorised recipient.
- Great care should be taken to establish the identity of any person asking for personal information and to make sure that the person is entitled to receive the information.
- If a staff member is asked by an unauthorised individual to provide details of personal information held by Relationships Scotland the staff member should ask the individual to put their request in writing and send it to the DPM. If the request is in writing the staff member should pass it immediately to their line manager or the DPM.

- Staff members must not use personal information for any purpose other than their work for Relationships Scotland.
- If a staff member is in doubt about any matter to do with data protection they must not refer the matter to their line manager or the DPM immediately.
- Passwords should not be disclosed and should be changed regularly;
- Staff member or third party personal data should not be left unsecured or unattended, e.g. on public transport;
- Unauthorised use of computer equipment issued by Relationships Scotland is not permitted;

Any breach of the above rules will be taken seriously and, depending on the severity of the matter, may constitute gross misconduct which could lead to summary termination of employment.
